Free tuition at BAC for scholars

High school graduates in the top 10 percent of the 1991 classes are eligible for full-tuition scholarships at Belleville Area College.

The board approved a one-year pilot scholarship plan for academically talented students who reside in the BAC district. BAC previously offered valedictorian or top 10 percent scholarships, but they were limited to two per high school each year. The new scholarships are available to all top 10 percent students. Fees and books are not covered by these scholarships.

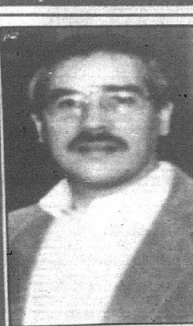

For information or to obtain an application, graduates may call 1-800-BAC-5313, extension 288, or visit a BAC campus. High schools also have the forms.

City may lose one board seat Redistricting studied

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The current outline of a map redistricting Madison County does not bode well for Granite City area County Board members, who will likely lose a seat to the Collinsville-Glen Carbon area.

Alan Dunstan, D-Troy, chairman of the board's Legislative Committee, said a map now being studied reflects that loss.

The redistricting work, which must be completed by June 30, is being done to appropriately shift county representation prior to 1992 elections.

"The numbers show that the eastern part of the county deserves to have more representation," Dunstan said.

"If you divide the population of the Tri-Cities area (Granite City, Madison, Venice) by 8,954, they get six representatives. Right now they have seven."

During a meeting of the Legislative Committee last Wednesday, board members agreed on 8,954 — plus or minus 5 percent — as the target population for each district. The 29 districts currently range in population from 5,773 in District 22 represented by Herbert "Junior" Milton, D-Granite City, to 11,116 in Dunstan's District 2.

Dunstan said the loss of the seat in the Granite City area is regrettable but unavoidable.

"This is not going to be a popularity contest," Dunstan said. "I'm sure we're going to ruffle some feathers."

Already ruffled is member Don Garrett, D-Madison, who also serves on the Legislative Committee. Garrett said the Granite City-Madison-Venice area is a victim of a "serious undercount" in the 1990 census.

Garrett said he'll oppose any plan eliminating a seat in the local community. "I'm not going to let them crucify Granite City on the cross of the undercount," Garrett said. "Granite City deserves its representation and I'll fight like hell to see it get it."

Census figures indicate that between 2,000 and 3,000 residents left both Milton's District 22 and

Separate trials sought in murder of two-year-old

By Nicole Vaughn

EDWARDSVILLE — A Madison County circuit judge has scheduled a hearing on a motion to sever the cases against a husband and wife charged with murder in the Feb. 2, 1990, death of the wife's two-year-old daughter.

Circuit Judge Edward C. Ferguson will hear the motion June 27.

It seeks to have the cases against Jim and Kathy Phillips of Maryville, formerly of Granite City, separated. The motion was filed earlier this month by defense attorney Thomas Hildebrand.

Heather Nicole Watson, 2, died at St. Louis Children's Hospital during emergency surgery to repair a ruptured bowel. A St.

Louis medical examiner said that the child died from blunt abdominal trauma.

A Madison County grand jury indicted the couple on several charges April 12, 1990.

Kathy Phillips was charged with two counts of concealment of a homicidal death, obstruction of justice and state benefits fraud.

Jim Phillips was charged with obstruction of justice and two counts each of concealment of a homicidal death and cruelty to a child.

The grand jury added first-degree murder charges against the couple on April 19, 1990. Both Phillips were released from custody that day after each posted $25,000 cash toward $250,000 bonds that had been set for each.

End of an era

After 67 years in practice, lawyer retires

By Ron Sammons
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Dale Hyle and Ralph Morris share a history in Granite City that dates back almost 50 years. They've watched business move from a once bustling downtown to outlying shopping centers, and fondly remember life in a different era. But their common history doesn't translate to a common opinion of Granite City's future.

The two men see Granite City heading in opposite directions. Hyle doubts the city's current efforts at central-business-district revitalization will succeed. Business has "moved mostly out to the Nameoki area now," he said.

Morris disagrees. "Downtown Granite City could make a comeback, and probably will. But it will take a lot of doing, with the city and citizens working together," he said. Both men took an opportunity recently to review the city's past. For Hyle, it's the end of an era — he recently handed his law office keys back to Morris, a longtime friend and his business associate since 1942.

After 67 years of serving the community as an attorney, Hyle is retiring. Morris, owner of Morris Realty Co. at 1907 Edison Ave., began leasing space to Hyle when Morris returned to Granite City in 1942 following military service in World War II. "Dale was here way before I was," Morris said.

Prior to that, Morris' father leased the office to Hyle and ran the real estate office, which was established by the Morris family in Granite City in 1903.

Bond issue proposed for downtown work

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city may consider borrowing $1.2 million to spur economic development in its downtown area.

On Monday, the Downtown Committee instructed Economic Development Director Alan Ortals to put together proposals for a bond issue to be paid from revenues from the city's Tax Increment Financing District.

Ortals said he hopes to have the proposal ready for presentation at the first City Council meeting in July.

He said the timing is partially due to a July 29 deadline involving bonds issued by sales tax TIF districts such as the Granite City TIF. Ortals said that if the city ever plans to issue TIF bonds, meeting the deadline could mean saving millions of dollars in the long run.

But 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney, a member of the committee, said just meeting a deadline was not a driving force for the committee.

He said the $1.2 million figure is what would be needed for property acquisition, demolition and utilities for proposed development on Madison Avenue.

Ortals said that, based on an interest rate of 9 percent, debt service on the bond issue (a total debt of $1.5 million) would be $135,000 a year for 18 years. The city's TIF revenues last year were $285,500.

Future TIF revenues can only go up, Partney said, so he thinks the city could meet its debt "even if everything that can go goes wrong."

Ortals said the Downtown Committee, chaired by 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller with Partney and 7th Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen as members, has been together a long time and has traditionally been fiscally conservative.

"They're not much on pie-in-the-sky," Ortals said.

Miller said the committee wasn't after a bond issue just to build up a cash reserve.

"We don't plan to go into debt unless we have specific uses in mind for the money," Miller said.

If the proposed Madison Avenue development (2000 block between Madison and Grand avenues) were to fall through after the bonds were issued, the committee recommends that the city set up a revolving loan fund for businesses in the TIF district.

The committee also said it would suggest the city hire a full-time TIF inspector who would have combined building inspection and sanitation inspection powers.

"Basically, the TIF inspector could go block by block and say 'Fix it or tear it down' and we would have the money to loan out if they wanted to fix it," Partney said. "What we're considering is a low

City-county cooperation: New way to raise taxes

If you've ever wanted to see what a politician would do if someone dropped a rattlesnake in his lap—and who has never cherished such a thought?—you should have been paying attention last week.

Something called the "Economic Development and Infrastructure Finance District of the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County" was presented to Mayor Vince Schoemehl and County Executive Buzz Westfall. The way they reacted, you'd have thought it was a timber rattler with a hand grenade tied on it.

What it was was this: a proposal that St. Louis city and the county join hands (horror!) to establish a regional economic development district. The district would be financed by a 1/2-percent earnings tax on everyone who holds a job in the city and county, along with a 3 percent tax on corporate utility bills.

This would give the district about $138.5 million a year, of which $42 million would be used to reduce property taxes. The balance of $96 million would be spent in two ways. Some $75 million would be used for capital improvements to what is commonly called "infrastructure"—roads, bridges, parks, mass transportation and so forth.

The other $21 million would be used to entice new businesses to St. Louis and to help existing businesses with expansion.

If you've read carefully, you probably noticed a key word here: The word is taxes, as in, "Read my lips, no new," which explains why Schoemehl and Westfall reacted as they did.

The economic development district proposal barely had hit the public prints before the two chief executives got off a joint letter that said, in effect: "No way, Jose. The voters would never buy that, so let's not waste our time."

Schoemehl and Westfall said they preferred to start slowly, by creating a new city-county tax district to finance repairs to Forest Park, the shabby setting for the crown jewels of St. Louis: museum district. But even that modest idea seems destined for trouble.

Schoemehl and the city haven't been able to pass a tax increase of any sort in years. Westfall's constituents are leery of not only taxes, but any kind of joint venture with the city. Given the city's Larry, Moe and Curly style of government, you can hardly blame them.

Even though the infrastructure tax died a burning, it's worth considering as an exercise in what government could be if it weren't tied so closely to politics.

There's no doubt of the desperate need for major repairs to the area's infrastructure. Nearly 10 years ago, a brilliant young journalist reported in the city's daily newspaper that the city alone needed $300 million in capital repairs.

Since that time, brilliant young journalist has gotten older and moved to the city's suburban newspapers and the city's capital repairs needs have reached at least half a billion dollars. Adding in the county's needs—and figuring on new construction needs such as airport expansion, the light rail system, new roads and bridges—it's estimated that some $4 billion to $5.5 billion is needed.

That estimate comes from something called the St. Louis City and County Board of Electors, a governmental entity of which it is safe to say the majority of the city and county residents are blithely unaware.

The electors are an appointed board—nine by the mayor, nine by the county executive and one by the governor—much like the place of the old city-county Board of Freeholders. The Freeholders were a creature of the state constitution, given power to rise periodically like a vampire, to consider changes in way government's business is done.

The electors are like a think-tank, free to operate in a sort of ivory tower atmosphere. They don't have to consider political realities, only governmental ones. And in an ivory tower world, it's probably true that the city and county need to join hands and spend huge sums of money to make St. Louis one city—and a great city.

Is that going to happen any time soon? No.

Should it happen? You be the judge of that.

Head Start program seeking space to rent

Money to begin a Head Start program in Edwardsville is in the bag, but organizers have been left holding it.

Program officials say they can't find enough room in the city to put the project on the map.

"We're assured of getting the funds," Chuck Parr, head of the program and vice president of the Alton-based Family Service & Visiting Nurse Association, said. "The negative side is we're still looking for space."

FSVNA now operates seven federally funded Head Start centers, one each in East Alton, Granite City, Venice and Caseyville, and three in Alton.

The organization is certain to pick up an additional $110,000 to open another classroom in Edwardsville to accommodate 35 children, Parr said.

"Our goal is to serve as much of Madison County as we can," Head Start Coordinator Kathy Wilson said.

The program is designed to help prepare 3- and 4-year-old children from low-income families for kindergarten.

Anyone with information about rental property should call 463-5950.

Crime scene tips given

As part of a unit of study about law, the sixth grade Lab students at Maryville School were visited recently by Detective Ned Tapp of the Granite City Police Department.

In his presentation to the students, Tapp shared several of his experiences as a detective. He sketched various crime scenes and discussed how a detective approaches the scene of a crime to gather evidence. Tapp also demonstrated crime analysis techniques, including obtaining fingerprints from objects.

Man beaten with club

After he was struck on the head with a wooden club, Len W. Whiteside, 21, of the 1700 block of Edison Avenue was taken to the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment at 1:20 a.m. June 8.

Four wounds on his head were sutured.

The back of his head was swollen and the cuts ranged up to 1 1/2 inches long.

The injuries were suffered while he was attending a party at a residence in the 2200 block of Monroe Street, authorities said.

A man started a fight with him, Whiteside said. After the man swung at him, Whiteside put the man on the ground until he quit fighting, Whiteside told police.

When the victim let his assailant get up, the man resumed fighting and struck Whiteside on the head with a wooden ball bat or night stick. The weapon was about two feet long.

The suspect was wearing a gray tank shirt and blue jeans. He had curly, black shoulder-length hair and was heavy-set.

A witness who said he was trying to help Whiteside during the attack also reported being struck by the club.

An investigation is continuing, police said.

No one was charged in the early stages of the investigation.

Placed on probation for cruelty to child

Lisa Allen, 24, of the 3000 block of West Chain of Rocks Road, Mitchell, was sentenced on June 3 to serve 18 months of probation on a charge of cruelty to children.

On Oct. 28, 1990, Allen partly choked her four-year-old stepson and beat the child with a wooden paddle until the paddle broke.

The sentencing took place at the Madison County Circuit Court in Edwardsville, court records show.

Two Granite City men were being held in the Madison County Jail after being charged with attempted residential burglary.

Kenneth W. Maxey, 20, and Scott M. Braswell, 17, both of the 1700 block of Edison Avenue, were held in lieu of $35,000 bonds. In a June 6 incident, the pair allegedly attempted to burglarize a home in the 300 block of Village Green, Pontoon Beach.

Journals resume popular tours

The Suburban Journals and Tenholder Travel Inc., today are announcing resumption of the popular Journal travel tours, featuring all-inclusive trips to some of the most popular world destinations.

The first Journal tour 30 years ago was to Hawaii and subsequent ones featured such destinations as Scandinavia, Eastern Europe, Africa, the Far East, Australia and China.

Tom Rice, president of the Suburban Journals, said, "The Journal tours had a fine reputation for outstanding destinations and complete service. We are pleased to be able to resume, with help from Tenholder Travel, this service to our readers." Complete details of the first tour under the new series of the published Wednesday, June 19 in your Journal newspaper.

Tom Tenholder, president of Tenholder Travel Inc., said, "We are pleased to work with the Journals again. The previous tours always featured the types of service and destinations that appealed to St. Louis area residents who want to know exactly what is included and what the costs are before starting a trip."

The first Journal tour in February, 1992, will be to Hawaii, the same destination of the first tour in 1961.

In the summer, the Journals will offer a tour to western Canada and Alaska, including a cruise through the famous Indian Passage. In the fall of 1992, a tour to New England's spectacular fall foliage will be offered.

As with previous tours, persons interested are invited to a special meeting at which Tenholder personnel explain in depth all features of the tour.

Tom Tenholder said the Journal tours will feature world-class accommodations, itineraries which include complete sight-seeing and recreational opportunities mixed with ample leisure time. Also, the tour groups will be small to allow for maximum service, he said.

Madigan pushes 4-day work-week

State employees could be cut to a four-day work-week to help balance the budget, if House Speaker Michael Madigan has his way.

The cuts could save $400 million "if you did that for six months," Madigan said during an interview taped Thursday for a program that will air Sunday on WBBM-AM radio in Chicago.

Reducing the work-week by one day would amount to a 20 percent pay cut.

Madigan said he broached the idea with the House Democratic Caucus but "I think the state employees' union would object most strenuously."

Reactions from area leaders of the American Federal of State, County and Municipal Employees were mixed.

"I wouldn't like it, and I know my workers wouldn't like it either," said Dick Dawdy, president of AFSCME Local 124, which represents about 400 workers at Alton Mental Health and Developmental Center. "It's a Band-Aid approach that puts the burden of bailing out state government on the backs of state workers."

He said a four-day work-week would violate collective bargaining agreements.

The AFSCME contract expires June 30, and Madigan said negotiations have broken off.

There might be less opposition to the plan among workers at Pere Marquette Youth Center, in part because the Grafton facility is scheduled to close July 1.

"The response would be good," said Tom Tauli, president of AFSCME Local 165, which represents most of the center's 61 workers. About 50 workers received layoff notices last month.

However, Tauli said the plan would have to call for a voluntary reduction in working hours.

The possibility of voluntary furloughs has been discussed, said Rep. Tom Ryder, R-Jerseyville. The state used that plan during a budget crisis in 1983, he said. Employees on voluntary furloughs would work a day or two a month without pay, said Ryder, who is heavily involved in the state budget negotiations.

But he added that cutting state employees to four-day weeks wouldn't be possible at mental health facilities and prisons and any savings might be wiped out by increased overtime pay.

Discussing another possibility for helping to balance the budget, Madigan said he "will not support any (new or increased) user fees unless Gov. (Jim) Edgar asks for the imposition of the user fees."

The fee increase idea was "part of a casual conversation in the office of the majority leader last week," Madigan said.

Majority Leader Gov. McPike, D-Alton, had said earlier that increasing user fees was one idea discussed in a meeting he attended.

Bargaining heats up at SIUE

EDWARDSVILLE — Labor relations are heating up at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Professional staff members have accused the administration of using unfair labor tactics while bargaining the first contract with their 2-year-old union. Charges filed with the Illinois Education Labor Relations Board on May 28 allege that school negotiators took back items previously agreed to.

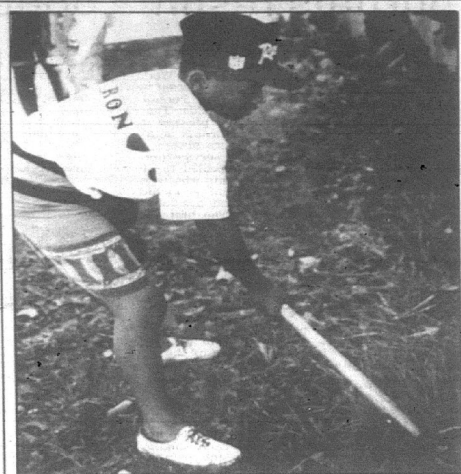

"Any item that is on the table has been tentatively agreed and signed off on, and if the time is pulled off the table and rescinded, then they are bargaining in bad faith," said Hilde Duebber, president of the Professional Staff Association.

The administration does not agree.

"As far as the charge being an unfair labor practice, it's totally unfounded," Administration Vice President Benjamin Quillian said.

Changing the offer was just part of normal negotiations, Quillian said.

The association and administration have been working on an agreement for two years.

Youngsters learn value of helping others

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EAGLE PARK — Bringing in a dozen or so kids with garden tools might not be the most efficient way to landscape a yard.

But when more than a dozen young people wearing matching T-shirts showed up at a house in the 200 block of Hill Street, the work got done. As a result, an elderly woman, at no cost, got rid of the tall weeds and grass in her yard and the brush was cleared from her overgrown fence.

But more importantly, according to Karen Rhodes, a group of young people was given the opportunity to feel helpful and useful.

Rhodes, a Madison resident, is the president and founder of Community Love, a group designed to keep young people busy and active.

While the young people work and play together, she said, they learn about love, responsibility, sharing and caring for others.

"We hope they will learn the kinds of values that will help them become the kind of kids who will stay out of trouble and off drugs," she said.

Community Love, which currently has about 45 members, will accept any child four years of age or older. Its members live in Madison, Venice, East St. Louis, Dupon and Cahokia.

"Most of our members heard about us through word of mouth," said Karen Griffin of East St. Louis, the vice president of Community Love.

"All of our kids have cards with the phone numbers of the president and vice president. When (other) kids see the T-shirts and ask them, they say to just give us a call."

On a weekly basis, the members of Community Love perform yard work and other chores for the elderly and handicapped. In return for their work, the members are entitled to wear Community Love T-shirts and hats.

"And we try to put together fun things for the kids as well," Griffin said. "Field trips like the St. Louis Zoo and Arch — and we had a special dinner for the kids."

Griffin and Rhodes said they hope the program can grow even bigger this summer.

"The kids are out of school and most of their parents work, so we'd really like to be doing a lot of things to keep the kids busy," Griffin said.

Community Love receives no government money and is not supported by any organized charity.

"I just started the program when I saw it was needed," Rhodes said.

"So far, we (Rhodes, Griffin and Johnnie Wooten, the other adult member) have tried to do it all ourselves. We've worked really hard to raise money to keep the program going and so far we have."

Persons interested in more information about Community Love may contact Rhodes at 1500 Market St., Apartment E-12, Madison, Ill. 62260.

Probation department faces cuts

EDWARDSVILLE — Gov. Jim Edgar's budget act could cut loose 15 officers employed by the county Probation and Court Services Department.

Edgar's budget proposal would cut $306,000 from the department's $1.82 million budget beginning July 1.

"A cut of $300,000 in our state subsidy means we cut department staff and eliminate valuable programs," department Director Robert Astorian said.

The department manages programs in intensive supervision, specialized DUI and drug probation, Astorian said.

As a result of the proposed cut, more convicts could be put in overcrowded prisons and fewer officers would be available to keep tabs on offenders sentenced to probation, he said.

"With the greater numbers of serious and drug-involved offenders, that means an increased threat to public safety in this county," Astorian said.

The state now supplies $1.3 million of the probation department's budget. Madison County covers the remaining $520,000.

The funds pay the salaries of more than 60 probation and detention staff.

"This represents a very serious situation," Astorian said of the proposed cuts. "Our case loads for adult and juvenile field services are already very high."

"We have a diverse department and cuts of this proportion would have a negative impact on our ability to continue programs that work well."

County Administrator Jim Monday said there is no chance the county could absorb the cuts.

"There's no other money," he said.

Astorian said the proposed cut will not save the state any money.

"It makes little sense to cut probation at a time when our prison system is operating at 20 percent over capacity," Astorian said.

Probation is considered the primary alternative to imprisonment. More than 80 percent of offenders in Illinois receive probation instead of prison sentences.

"If the governor insists on delaying new facilities, closing facilities like Pere Marquette (Youth Center) and eliminating most parole agents, then our programs will be the only alternatives. And he still wants to cut us. Who will deal with the many serious offenders we monitor?" Astorian said.

Plan may help solve area trash problems

Elected officials from three Illinois counties say that the communication channels opened with the adoption of a solid-waste management plan may help solve trash problems as much as the plan itself.

The plan also may serve as a model for similar plans that have to be adopted by counties throughout Illinois.

"I don't know if the plan itself is as important as the structure that was set up," said St. Clair County Board Chairman John Baricevic.

In May, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency approved the plan for St. Clair, Madison and Monroe counties. The plan is only the second to be accepted by the state, following adoption of a plan for Lake County in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Approval of the local plan puts the counties in compliance with the 1988 Illinois Solid Waste Planning and Recycling Act (PA 85-1198) that requires such plans. The counties have been working for three years with the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council to write the plan.

The plan, which details how the counties will handle their waste for the next 20 years, calls for recycling programs, cutting back landfill use by reducing the amount of trash, and ultimately by building waste-to-energy plants.

Local communities are allowed some autonomy in developing individual recycling or trash reduction projects, according to the plan.

The plan identifies the characteristics of an ideal location for a waste-to-energy facility but does not recommend a specific site although an area in western Madison or St. Clair counties may fit the criteria. As many as two such facilities are discussed in the plan, both of which could burn 1,500 tons of waste per day.

Details of the plan may have to be changed over time based on new laws and technology, say Baricevic and other officials. But because they've already worked together, the counties have laid the ground work for adapting the plan to changes and new developments.

"Every year there are several new bills that have become law, we can update the plan to add or delete those laws," said Madison County Board member Robert C. Stille.

"So far we're satisfied, at least we have a plan of action," said Monroe County Commissioner Harry R. Reichert Jr. "None of us know all the bumps on the road but we can deal with them."

St. Clair County Board member Frank H. Boyne, active in developing the plan, agrees that a major step the counties made was looking at their area as a whole.

Other areas are going to have to do the same things, because landfills often require a large number of people to support them to make them feasible, Boyne said.

"They (other counties) have got to look at it as a region,"

Boyne said. Baricevic agreed. "The benefit has been getting over the age old problems some of us have had with regionalism," Baricevic said. "All of us now are looking at the problem as opposed to each of us individually."

Baricevic said the plan, along with the work that local governments are doing with trash management, could put the areas in good stead if federal or state grant money becomes available. Meanwhile, other communities may be examining the plan and how all three counties were able to develop it, Boyne said the plan will be a model for other counties in Missouri and Illinois.

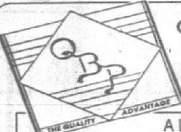

"It is a model, everybody wants to look at it," Boyne said. The local plan was developed because the three counties reached an agreement early on some common goals, Boyne said. They then went out and hired experienced, qualified engineering firms and consultants to develop the plan, he added.

SIUE faculty nixes union

Hospital nurses recognized for 'caring for America'

Eight nurses from St. Elizabeth Medical Center received special recognition from their peers during National Nurses Week.

During that week, SEMC nurses were recognized for promoting the theme "Nurses Care for America." Each nurse was presented with an SEMC Star Associate pin and had her photograph displayed in her department.

Intravenous Therapy nurses nominated Sandy Wrigley for the award because of work she does with her church. She "provides bus and meals for visiting missionaries and collects worn sheets that are made into bandages," the nomination said.

Wrigley's daughter is a teacher of special students. Wrigley provides parties and gifts for each of the children during the holidays, and purchases materials for the classroom.

"The classroom was vandalized last year and the children were upset that their collection of National Geographic magazines was stolen. Sandy immediately subscribed to the magazine for them and was able to find some old issues to give the class," it was noted.

Wrigley's other activities include being a Hospice volunteer, collecting food for families in her community, and baking cakes for chemotherapy patients in celebration of their last treatment.

"Sandy is a very caring person. She displays Christian values and principles at all times and truly represents the theme 'Nurses Care for America,' the nomination concluded.

Dona Boyer, a licensed practical nurse in Surgical, was recognized for her activities with Madison County Hospice, Cancer Support and the National Federation of LPNs and her work with her church.

"Dona cares for others and goes out of her way to do for the less fortunate," according to the nomination.

Karen Simon, from Recovery, was recognized for continuously giving her time to family, friends and community.

"Karen has had extensive training and service in pediatrics. She works well with children and their parents. She has worked many Saturdays in the Well Baby Clinic above and beyond her normal working hours," the nomination related.

Other activities include volunteering at the Crisis Pregnancy Center, working with youth groups in her church, volunteering her time and energy for school projects involving her children, and using her vacation time to work at health fairs sponsored by SEMC.

"Karen's happiness and fulfillment in her profession as a nurse influenced her daughter, Julie, to enter nursing. Both her daughters were junior volunteers," the nomination said.

"As her co-workers, we enjoy working with and being influenced by Karen's good nature and talents. As a friend, she is always there in the good as well as the bad (times). Karen is a strong, kind and gentle nurse."

Linda Rensing of Obstetrics was recognized for volunteering her time to preschools and Boy Scouts.

"Linda strives to promote good nursing care all the time. She has gone back to school for her bachelor of science degree in nursing while working the mid-night shift."

"She personifies the whole idea of a nurse. She is caring, considerate and compassionate to patients and fellow nurses. (It is a) privilege to work with her."

Linda Potter, an Acute Medical Care nurse, works with Rainbow Girls, an organization devoted to charity work.

"Linda uses her own vacation time to accompany these girls to camp," according to her peers.

"She is utilized as a camp nurse for the children. Linda has always demonstrated a caring attitude toward her patients, staff and families."

Florence Kuehl of the Skilled Nursing Unit volunteers as a nurse to the Epilepsy Coalition in Illinois.

"She volunteers as a camp nurse for summer retreats. The camps provide the opportunity for adults diagnosed with epilepsy to participate in a supervised camping experience."

"Most of the campers are on a fixed income and would not otherwise be able to afford this experience if not for the volunteer nurse," the nomination said.

Jackie Haug of Nursing Administration has given free care to children in the Quad City area for families who could not afford it.

"Jackie does free sports physicals for the Madison School District and Holy Family Catholic School, free camp physicals for the 'Salvation Army,' and free immunizations for Catholic schools."

Sue Watkins of the Critical Care Unit was recognized for her work with Boy Scouts and her pursuit of education.

Her nomination said, "Sue is an active participant in Boy Scouts in leadership training, and volunteers as a camp nurse."

"She also is a CPR (cardio pulmonary resuscitation) instructor and has been certified in advanced cardiac life support and in critical care as a critical care registered nurse."

"She is active in American Associates of Critical Care Nurses and approaches patients' families and co-workers in a caring manner."

Treatment centers fear budget cuts

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Alcoholics and drug addicts will have a harder time getting treatment if Gov. Jim Edgar's proposed budget cuts are enacted, area treatment centers officials said last week.

"The effect is just going to be devastating as far as dealing with drug and alcohol abuse in our community," said George Smith, director of the Gateway Foundation's residential facility in Caseyville. "As far as the drug and alcohol field is concerned, and the treatment available in this area, we're going to be taking a step back 20 years."

Much debate and negotiating remains before the budget is passed later this summer.

But under Edgar's proposed budget, local treatment programs could lose an average of 10 percent of their funding—some as much as 45 percent—and could be forced to turn out one out of every six of their clients, according to Executive Director Mary Ann Anderson of the Illinois Alcoholism and Drug Dependence Alliance (IADDA). Gateway Foundation, for example, will be hard hit. Beginning July 31, Smith will lay off 15 of its 25 employees. And beginning July 1, the facility will begin "gradually" trim its capacity from 50 beds to 37.

"The residential facility is full 'every day of the year' and currently has a waiting list of about 45 people. But that will get much worse after the cuts take effect," Smith said.

"It will increase our waiting list to probably 60 or 70 people at any one time," Smith said. "And where it now takes up to six weeks to get in, that will go up to about three months."

Gateway Foundation's outpatient facility in Belleville also could face cuts, Unit Director Ron Vitale said.

If the governor's cuts go as his initial proposal is, the Belleville office is going to lose $50,000 in funding, which probably would mean the layoff of two counselors, he said. "We have probably about 160 clients at the Belleville outpatient facility. If the cuts go in, we'll probably have to reduce our population to about 100."

At other area agencies, officials were worried, but reluctant to comment on what specific effects the budget could have.

"There was lots of industry—the Granite City Steel mill, American Steel, Union Starch & Refining, the Commonwealth plant and others. The town was always an educational hub. It could walk to work, because there were no cars then."

Things are much different now, Hyle said. "It used to be very busy down here, but now it's all moving out," he said. "It was always an educational hub. Lots of schools were built, but now they've closed because of the population decline."

Both men think the downtown area is suffering. "Now they treat downtown as a stepchild," Morris said. "The stormwater sewers back up when it rains and the sidewalks really need to be fixed. The sewer, outer parts are treated much better and get all the attention."

"Everything has moved out to the shopping centers," Hyle said. "They need to create an industrial interest. Until more industry moves in, people can't afford houses and other things."

Industry used to drive the city's economy, Morris said.

added that it's not too late. "The plants and town grew together—but it's not that way today. Unfortunately, the town is shrinking," he said.

"I would like to congratulate the bank for helping the area, though. It's interesting how we've come full circle with the downtown area."

"The proposed Metro Link system, a modern street car system, is an example of what there are others. The proposal for a downtown bus terminal is also a plus."

•Bonds—

interest rate, say 3 percent, with a cap on how much can be borrowed.

Orbital said that, in addition to a proposal for TIF revenue bonds, he was preparing a proposal for TIF bonds with a general obligation (property tax base) backing. That type of bond would have a lower interest rate, he said, and would not require the city to maintain a bond reserve. "We want to have a full range of options to present to the council," Orbital said.

In other action, the Downtown Committee decided Monday to ask for proposals for the former Central Bank building the city owns in the 1900 block of Edison Avenue.

Orbital said an unnamed corporation has expressed an interest in using the building for office space.

Further information may be obtained from Barnes at 452-2884, Mary Scarsdale, DAV Auxiliary president, 451-9629, or Jim Taylor, chaplain of Madison Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7451, at 931-4504. Or, persons may arrive early at the assembly point on the morning of the parade, it was announced.

"We want everyone to join in the celebration and fly the colors proudly," Barnes said.

The ceremony at the Greater Granite City War Memorial immediately after the parade will feature guest speaker Steer. A veteran of the Vietnam war and a former prisoner of war, he is the founder of Fort Steer, a United Veterans and Family Support Corporation. The group operates a rehabilitation retreat at Charlotte, Ark.

All those participating in the parade are to begin assembling at 8 a.m. Saturday at 27th and State streets and northward to Granite City High School.

All area military personnel and all Gold Star mothers from here or surrounding communities are being urged to take part. Parade Marshal Al Barnes said.

Starting at 10 a.m. Saturday at Madison Avenue and 27th Street, the paraders will march south on Madison Avenue, ending at 19th Street.

The Rev. John Steer of Charlotte, Ark., a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, will speak at the Greater Granite City War Memorial immediately after the parade. It is at Niedringhaus and Grand avenues near 21st Street.

Sixty units are expected to participate in the parade, which will focus on Operation Desert Storm veterans and the national resurgence of patriotism.

Among those scheduled to take part in the parade are World War I veterans, mothers who have lost their sons or daughters in the line of duty in service to their country, cadetaries riding in special vehicles, color guards, floats and marching units.

Crackdown planned on abandoned, deteriorating Venice houses

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — Various properties in the city, either abandoned or in disrepair and in deteriorating condition, were reviewed by aldermen at the June 4 meeting of the City Council.

City inspectors will be urged to attend council meetings from now on to hear complaints, aldermen said.

Fourth Ward Alderman Henry Fletcher talked about the condition of one house in his ward. "I think we can get some help with equipment if we can get the manpower to clear it out," he said. The location was not given, other than in the 4th Ward and close to the Madison city boundary.

Both Aldermen Victor Valentine Sr. (4th Ward) and John Ervin (3rd Ward) had looked at the site, Fletcher reported. "It's a humongous problem," he said.

"There's lots of concrete and heavy stuff back there. It could take two or three days, and our equipment wouldn't pick it up," Valentine said.

"Is there anything in the demolition fund?" Fletcher asked. No, not for that purpose, Valentine said.

"We also don't have the equipment to do it," Valentine said.

Two residences on Market Street are in bad condition, it was said. "A house in the 1000 block of Douglas Street is out of control also," Valentine said. "I'll try to get with the health inspector tomorrow. Pictures alone are no good without a report."

Fletcher said it may be possible to borrow equipment from another city to move debris from the first property.

"If we borrow any equipment and it's torn up we, are responsible for it," Mayor Tyrone Echols pointed out.

"Their man would operate the equipment and we'd take it to the dump," Fletcher said.

"I couldn't make a judgment or commit on it before looking at it (the property). Also, the man with the equipment should look at it. I honestly haven't been back there to see," Echols said. "Sooner or later it has to be done. It's just a lot of junk," Fletcher replied.

"It definitely needs to be looked at, but I don't know how much (work) is involved," Echols said. Fletcher promised to talk again with the man who operates demolition equipment and report back to the council in two weeks.

Property in the 800 block of Third Street and the 1200 block of Robin Street also is in bad condition, aldermen said.

The Third Street site described to the City Council was cleared and leveled by the owner two days after the meeting, a city official said Friday.

On Robin Street, a garage fell into the alley and the house appears to have been abandoned, it was reported. "The whole alley was so full of trash, the trash truck couldn't get down the alley," 1st Ward Alderman Michael Terrell said.

Second Ward Alderman Silver Franklin said the health inspector and other city inspectors should be present at the council meetings.

"They receive a salary and they should be here, and should be held accountable. If they'd come to the meetings they would be present to hear the complaints."

"We have to be here and they are on salary and should be here also," Franklin said.

"If they are not going to come, we should say, 'We don't need you.' I think if they are not here at the next meeting, unless they are at work, we should get rid of them," Franklin said.

Health Inspector Sylvester

Silas works straight evenings, Valentine said. "Some places let you off but others won't let you off. I admit, it's hard to catch the man. I do have a problem with the health inspector, but not with the building inspector," Valentine said.

Building Inspector Roland Wilson was at the council meeting.

The Suburban Journals of Greater St. Louis today honor the Athletes of the Year in Missouri and Illinois as the 1990-1991 high school athletic season draws to a close.

Brentwood senior Ken Robinson and St. Joseph's Academy freshman Kristin Folkl are being recognized as the first recipients of the Journals' Athlete of the Year award in Missouri. Meanwhile, Belleville Althoff senior DaRond Stovall and Belleville West junior Marnie Triefenbach have earned the same honors in Illinois.

The winners were chosen by the seven sports editors in the Suburban Journals' chain. Athletic excellence throughout the school year was the primary criteria used in selecting the Journals' top athletes for '90-'91, and all four Athlete of the Year winners owned extremely impressive credentials as two- or three-sport athletes.

Robinson recently led Brentwood to the Missouri 1A-2A state track title and kept his school's basketball team on top through most of the season by averaging 22 points per game. Also, Robinson steered the Brentwood football team at quarterback by averaging nearly eight yards per carry and passing for better than 800 yards on the season.

Meanwhile, no freshman in recent memory has made an impact on the varsity athletic scene as Folkl did this season at St. Joseph's.

Folkl earned first-team all-state and second-team All-American honors last fall in guiding St. Joe's to a state 4A volleyball title. Several months later, Folkl directed the Angels to the state basketball championship and earned first-team all-state recognition in the process.

Stovall capped his four-year varsity athletic career in brilliant fashion last week by being named MVP in the Illinois Class A tourney in Springfield, where Althoff won its first state baseball championship. A day earlier, Stovall — who signed recently to play baseball at the University of Arkansas — learned he was drafted in the fifth round by the Cardinals.

Triefenbach helped Belleville West win its first volleyball championship and was a first-team all-American in USA Today and Volleyball Monthly. Then Triefenbach helped the Maroons girls basketball team maintain a No. 1 ranking in the state before losing its first game of the season in the sectional championship.

Today's Athlete of the Year announcements end the Journals' regional Athlete of the Week features and the metro-wide Athlete of the Month program, but only for the summer. Both will return when the 1991-1992 high school athletic season begins in September.

By Dave Whaley

GRANITE CITY — The Triplets gained some momentum Saturday for their biggest week of the regular season. And that momentum carried over at least to Monday.

Post 113 rallied for a dramatic 7-6 win over Fairview Heights on Saturday with three runs in the bottom of the seventh, then rolled past Marissa 9-2 on Monday. The Triplets improved to 4-1 and have games scheduled every night this week.

"This is the big week," said manager Ralph Burnett. "By the time we get done Friday night we will have played nine league

'Lone Wolf' wins 1st Mello Yello race at Tri-City

By Steve Birmingham
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — The Mello Yello Racing Series at Tri-City Speedway got off to a lightning-fast start June 5 with Doug Wolfgang obliterating the field to win the first event of the month-long series.

Starting on the second row, Wolfgang — of Sioux Falls, S.D. — needed exactly half a straightaway to take first and pull away from the other 19 competitors. Polesitter Mike Peters could only watch as the Lone Wolf disappeared into a cloud of dust en route to a $3,000 paycheck in the Red Baron Frozen Pizza-sponsored race.

"The track was real abrasive and slick, but it hooked up real hard, like it was lucky, after three or four laps," Wolfgang said. "A lot of the guys were actually hooked up too much and weren't spinning their tires because they couldn't turn them. They were pushing coming off (the turns) and were going to hit the outside fence unless they backed off, but we were just about right."

Wolfgang lapped all but the second and third place finishers in the 30-lapper, but ran his race as if everyone was barking at his back.

"I had no idea where we were at," Wolfgang said. "But I would have run it that hard anyway, because if I slowed down tonight I was going to push and I wasn't going to be able to go around the corners. We have a different motor we're trying out, so the only way we were going to get a good read on it was if I pressed her down."

Bobby Davis Jr., charged from his second row outside starting slot to take second. He was challenged early by Joey Saldana, Mike Peters and Gary Wright. The field started stringing out, though, as several of the racers slipped and slid between the backmarkers.

Coming across the stripe in sixth was Danny Smith, winner of the last two USAC/Locitie sprint car events here. Following Smith were Frankie Kerr, Rick Hood, Terry Gray and Jerry Stone.

Springfield's Donnie Beechler led from start to finish in the 12-lap Master Mechanic's/True Value Hardware Stores Last Chance race. He made quick work of it, taking the lead at the drop of the green and initially being chased by John Briscoe and Mike Thurman.

Thurman wrestled second away on the second lap after Briscoe faded, and that's the way they finished, with Rocky Hodges, Briscoe and Belleville's Chip Thomas rounding out the top five.

Heat race winners were Mike Peters, Wolfgang and Saldana. No time trials were held.

In the IMCA modified action, four caution flags slowed the race, but not race winner John Seets.

Seets came from the third row to grab the lead from Charlie

Smith midway through the 20-lap headliner. A first lap crash involving five cars caused the first of the restarts, but no injuries resulted and all five were able to continue.

When the green flew, so did Smith, hounded by Wilson and Butch Kuhn.

A spin by Don Cruzen slowed the pace, but six laps later it was all over as Seets took first from Smith.

Kuhn, hanging tough in third, spun in turn four while challenging for second and put himself out of the running.

Seets survived a last-lap spin by Steve Meyers Sr. and cruised home the victor, followed by Smith, Wilson, John Hobson and Cletus Blackwell.

Finishing sixth through tenth were Jake Seets, Troy Walker, Allen Miles, Rick Weber and Cruzen.

Heat race winners were Smith and Wilson, while John Seets also took the IMCA Mello Yello Dash for Cash.

The USAC/Locitie sprint cars will return to Tri-City Speedway every Wednesday night in June. Kids 12 and under get in free when they bring a Red Baron's Frozen Pizza proof-of-purchase seal.

CHARLEY MASE of Colonial Drive rolled his first 300 game May 16 at Bowland Lanes. He was a once-a-week bowler in the 1960s and '70s before being sidelined for a few years with arthritis. He returned to bowling in the mid-'80s and since retiring 3½ years ago has enjoyed bowling several times a week in the senior programs at Bowland. "It's wonderful and I enjoyed it, but the best part is these wonderful senior programs sponsored by Bowland Lanes that makes it affordable for the retirees," he said. "The summer programs are especially important to the area seniors."

Golfer gets 1st ace

Paul Miller of Granite City shot the first hole-in-one of his career June 3 at Arlington Golf Course.

Miller, 28, used a six-iron to score the ace during Monday Night League play. The shot came on the 165-yard eighth hole.

Topwater lures provide excitement in bass fishing

Calling or coaxing a member of the bass family—largemouth, smallmouth or spotted—from its unseen underwater lair to strike an artificial lure floating on or near the water's surface is very exciting.

Most of the time, fishing is a matter of presenting a lure or lure bait to unseen animals hiding beneath the surface. This is something we do for fun and food something that is challenging because no matter how much study and understand, we're still working with animals and situations we can't fully comprehend.

However, coaxing the fish to strike something we can see is quite different. Topwater bass fishing largely is thought of as something done for a short period of time in the middle to late spring period and again in the fall.

But the truth is that topwater will work early in the morning and late in the evening as well as throughout the spring.

Bill Seibel

summer and fall by changing locations with the fish.

Topwater lures come in a couple of basic varieties—quiet, subtle types and the "bass," noisy, moving, fussy-creating types. One of the most popular quiet types is the minnow-imitating lure. Manufactured and sold by such names as Rapala, Rebel, Rattlin' Rogue, Long A, Bang-A-Lure, Red Fin, ThunderStick and Jerk Bait, these lures are casted out and gently twitched across or just under the surface.

More active and noisy topwaters sometimes work as well or better than the quiet types. The configuration and action can vary widely.

One of the most popular in recent years is the buzz bait—a lead-headed safety-pin spinner-bait with a paddle-type blade replacing the spinners. These lures are cranked across the surface as the blades bubble and gurgle—and bass strike. Blades usually are made of aluminum, such as the original Lunker Lure or excellent Triple Wing, but in hot summer those with clear or colored Lexan (plastic) blades seem to work slower and better.

In thick weeds, plastic frogs or mice have become very popular in recent years. But the spoon-shaped lure with an upward-rising hook that wiggles and slides over potential snags still works very well.

In open waters, the Pop-R, Lucky 13, Jitterbug and Devil's Horse are different types of stop-and-go noisemakers that draw impressive strikes. The Pop-R and Lucky 13 have concave lure faces which pop and gurgle when twitched. The Jitterbug has a big blade across its nose which causes it to gurgle and bubble when retrieved. The Devil's Horse has fore and aft tiny spinners which sputter as it is twitched.

But no open-water topwater lure is more difficult to learn to use or more effective than the dog-walking Zara Spook. It looks like a fat cigar that floats nose up, rump down at a rest. Reeling it does nothing. But learn to twitch your rod tip with a rhythm that causes the bait to zigzag side-to-side across the surface, called "walkin' the dog," and you can call bass from the depths or a distance.

This year, a new breed of very effective topwaters has hit the fishing lure market. It all started with a Connecticut-creator called a Slug-Go. It is a short plastic minnow-imitator or stick-bait.

Unfortunately, Slug-Go couldn't keep up with the demands of anglers and soon there was the Bass Assassin from Mayo, Fla., the Scissorail Shad from Precision Lures in Strawberry, Ark. and the SHAD-ow from Mann's in Eufaula, Ga. All are made of medium-soft plastic, are heavy enough to cast on bait-casting or spinning tackle without a lead weight and are meant to work on or just under the surface. And bass seem to love them.

Two secrets my KMOX Radio partner, Abu-Garcia pro Tony Albright, has discovered is to use a 5/0 worm hook and to use as light a line as you can get away using. On clear Bull Shoals Lake, he has been using 16-pound line with spinning gear.

The lure is casted out and twitched gently. You can do it slowly or try to put some rhythm into it.

Is The Vital-18 the Natural Path to Weight Control??

An Interview with Charlie Brown, President of Vital-18, Inc.
By Stuart Wilbur

The following INTERVIEW was originally published in The Health Focus June 1987 issue. Since that time a great deal more people have tried The Vital-18. According to reports we have received, they have had tremendous success. Since Jan. 1987, we have had one hundred thousand returned by dissatisfied customers, and we have consistently enjoyed a 90% repurchase rate. We believe these statistics speak for themselves.

It is now truly a way to lose weight without hunger, depression, constipation, headaches and the general lack of energy that goes with strict dieting.

The people who have used "The Vital-18" say so. We recently had an opportunity to interview Charlie Brown, President of Vital-18, Inc., the corporation marketing this amazing new product, and thought we would share this information with you.

Question: Mr. Brown, how new is this product and how did it come to be available?

Answer: Staci, the product is only new to the United States; it has been on the market in Europe for a couple of years. The product originated in Qatar, a small Arab nation on the Persian Gulf which is a loyal ally of the United States. Qatar is probably the richest nation in the world per capita. They have an average income of approximately $65,000 each. It is a benevolent monarchy and the government of Qatar pays all the medical bills. When they came into their wealth from the oil, they began to develop a lot of the health problems experienced here in the Western world. The medical bills began to get rather expensive so they brought a team of doctors and technicians in from Pakistan, India and Japan to attempt to alleviate the problem. It seems that medical people from these countries learn more to natural remedies than to synthetic drugs. After three years of research, experimentation, and several million dollars in expenditures, "The Vital-18" was the result of their work.

Question: Well, after all this money and time, what did they actually produce?

Answer: There is a rather lengthy technical answer to that, but to make it short they took a very basic form of plant life, a single cell blue green algae, and under controlled conditions fed it specific nutrients and minerals. Through out the natural process of photosynthesis, they produced a super plant protein containing 18 of the known 22 amino acids, (all naturally occurring) including the essential eight amino acids, and some 72 vitamins and trace minerals. It is now the highest natural source for Beta carotene that I know of, and is even several times higher in vitamin B 12 than liver.

Question: What does all this have to do with weight loss?

Answer: The original product was engineered as a general health aid for one of the richest nations in the world. We got them to make a change in the formula to reduce the calorie content. When it is taken as we recommend, it provides the fuel for the body with practically no calories. Your readers familiar with amino acids probably already know why it works so well. One of the amino acids provides fuel for the brain, another stimulates the thyroid gland to increase metabolism, another aids in the transfer of carbohydrates

"The Vital-18" is 100% natural...grown and processed...in the USA under strict USDA requirements...Because it is totally natural, the body takes only what it wants. I can't think of any food that is any safer...and you will find The Vital-18 only at GREEN EARTH GROCERY located at 219 Hillsboro in Edwardsville and HIGHLAND NUTRITION located at 320 Walnut Street in Highland.

into cellular energy, another aids in the removal of waste from the cells, another assists in relieving depression. All this results in weight loss and feeling absolutely fantastic!

Question: Why do so many people who lose weight gain it back?

Answer: Surveys show that upwards of 90% of the people who are successful on all other weight loss programs gain back the lost weight plus extra pounds. Other scientific, nutritionally recognized studies show that diets often decrease their nutritional intake while reducing calories. This, in turn, reduces energy available for the brain and the body. To protect itself, the brain sends strong hunger signals to the body and then slows down the metabolism to keep the body from what the brain thinks is starvation. Frequent dieting slows the metabolic rate; energy use becomes more efficient and the dieter often gains back all the pounds lost and more.

Question: Once a person reaches their goal weight, how does "The Vital-18" help to maintain this weight?

Answer: Unlike ordinary programs, "The Vital-18" actually provides fuel for the body and brain in a form that is quickly absorbed into the blood stream. The body has no reason to signal the body to eat and the metabolism is actually stimulated by amino acids. This brings about further controlled weight loss or weight maintenance, depending on other foods eaten by the person on The Vital-18. Therefore, The Vital-18 can be your answer to preventing weight gain after weight loss.

Question: Some of the people we have spoken to who have taken "The Vital-18" make some astounding claims, not only about the weight they have lost but what it has done for their health as well. Is all this truly possible?

Answer: I am not really sure how to answer that. I am not a doctor or a bio-chemist. We are getting reports back every day that astound even me.

There does indeed seem to be some scientific basis for amino acids aiding in all these problems. The only claim that Vital-18 makes is that you can lose weight and at the same time feel better than you ever have. If someone buys The Vital-18, and for any reason is dissatisfied, we will refund their money.

Question: Is it a totally safe product?

Answer: Staci, "The Vital-18" is 100 percent natural with no synthetics or animal parts of any sort. It is now grown and processed right here in the USA under strict USDA requirements. Because it is totally natural, the body only takes what it needs. We have a customer who must lose weight prior to having surgery. Her doctor is prescribing "The Vital-18". It does not require a prescription, and her insurance company is paying for it. As a matter of fact, we just received a request from her insurance company to send her an additional month's supply at their expense. Staci, can you name another diet product that insurance companies are willing to pay for? I can't think of any and that is safer.

Question: Since "The Vital-18" is so effective, Mr. Brown, how long do you think it will be before others try to copy it?

Answer: The success of "The Vital-18" has generated a great demand on stores that do not carry our product. There are now products on the market claiming to be "similar" or the same as "The Vital-18", some of them are yeast saturated, there is no generic or similar product to "The Vital-18". "The Vital-18" IS YEAST FREE!

There is another product claiming to be similar to "The Vital-18". Similar can be a misleading word. Rice is similar to wheat as they are both grains, but they certainly are not the same. WE DO TAKE ISSUE WITH ANY OTHER PRODUCT CLAIMING TO BE THE SAME.

An analysis of these so called "similar" products and "The Vital-18" by a certified laboratory will show the amino acid, mineral and vitamin content of the so-called similar products to be less than that of "The Vital-18". The ingredients of "The Vital-18" are combined by a very special "cold process" that retains the nutrients of the ingredients, rather than "cooking them off". This process has yet to be copied by anyone. Perhaps that is why no other products get the results that "The Vital-18" does, not only in weight loss, but overall health. Also, Staci, if a company has to go to the expense of printing literature calling their product similar to "The Vital-18" to sell their product, what does that tell you about "The Vital-18"?

Question: How long has "The Vital-18" been available at the United States and when will we expect to see it in the stores?

Answer: We succeeded in negotiating an exclusive contract for "The Vital-18" with Sheikh Jassim bin Khalifa Al Thani of the Royal Family of Qatar in December of 1986 for North America. We were incorporated in January of 1987 and made "The Vital-18" available to the American public at that time. You will only see this product in exclusive health food stores which have been selected as authorized distribution centers. We do not want "The Vital-18" associated with any other of the so-called diet products presently available. We believe the most effective way of advertising is people telling other people what it has done for them. We have a motto in the company "Sharing the Health and Wealth". We are growing at a steady 60 percent per month and have been since January 1987. We may have the fastest growing network of Distributors in the U.S. Actually, I prefer to call us a "Sequential" marketing company as we do not make any profit off the distributors, only on the product sold.

Question: What if the customer is not satisfied?

Answer: Staci, the customer just returns the bottle to the location of purchase and gets their refund. The Vital-18 has a 100% unconditional money back guarantee.

Question: What does it taste like?

Most diet products are unpleasant, to say the least.

Answer: It is a liquid and comes in three flavors. It tastes good enough that if you want to keep the kids out of it, you may have to hide it.

Question: How could someone get access to "The Vital-18"?

Answer: In Madison County we have selected 2 EXCLUSIVE authorized Distribution Centers to service the area.

1. GREEN EARTH GROCERY located 1/2 block north of the Post Office at 219 Hillsboro in Edwardsville. The phone number is 618-656-3375.
2. HIGHLAND NUTRITION located 1 block south of the Walnut at 320 Walnut Street in Highland. The phone number is 618-654-9017. Mail orders are available at either location.

Otherwise you could call a "Vital-18" Incorporated at 504-282-9871 or write P.O. Box 1205, Middleburg, FL 32068 for a Distributor in your area.

Boos for Coleman out of place for Cardinal fans

A Busch Stadium crowd showed its love for the game last week by giving Ori Herisher of the Los Angeles Dodgers a rousing ovation after Herisher threw six scoreless innings at Busch Stadium.

Herisher, a career member of the Dodgers, is battling back from a torn rotator cuff injury. It was a nice touch of class. It was the sort of thing we like to see in baseball fans doing on a regular basis here. They did it again for Willie McGee's return with the San Francisco Giants on Friday.

Oddly—or maybe not—the same St. Louis fans who were so moved by Herisher's determination also were moved to react to New York Mets outfielder Vince Coleman throughout a series the weekend before last.

Boo, they screamed every

Dennis Barnidge

University basketball games at the Arena. Coleman, who had seen nearly every former Redbird who made his way back through the National League treated to a show of appreciation when they played at Busch, was puzzled and hurt by the fans' reaction.

He expected a reception similar to that accorded former Cardinals all-stars Tommy Herr and Jack Clark. Instead, he got the reception that used to be saved for hyper-slings like Keith Hernandez and Gary Templeton.

This is not to say that anything vile happened. No one pitched a bottle at Coleman. There were no reports of taunts, harassment, name-calling. All it amounted to was a round of boos every time Coleman poked his head out of the Mets dugout.

Nothing, particularly ugly about that. Players get booed every night of the season. Boos are part of the million-dollar package. As the crew of KMOX Radio noted before and after each Coleman booing incident, the fans have that right.

The fans had that same right

Mulches retain moisture, create better planting bed

By Steven Cline

A mulch is any material that covers the soil surface around and under plants to protect and improve the area. Two major reasons for mulching today are to conserve moisture and to create a better planting bed.

Additionally, by recycling yard waste back into the landscape we mulch our planting beds for an environmental, as well as horticultural, benefit.

Organic Mulch
Mulch comes in three types: organic, synthetic and inorganic.

The majority of mulches we use are organic materials that we recycle from our own yards. Garden centers also offer a wide assortment of packaged organic mulches. The most common organic mulches include peat or sphagnum moss, wood chips or shavings, sawdust, shredded or chipped bark and lawn clippings. In summer, organic mulches keep the ground cooler in the daytime. In winter, they keep the ground warmer and less subject to heaving. The real value of organic mulch is that it improves soil structure and the quality of the rooting zone.

In St. Louis, organic mulches should be applied around annual plantings in mid-May after the soil has warmed up. Generally, a 2-inch layer of compost, peat moss, or chipped or shredded bark is sufficient to protect against moisture loss and temperature fluctuations in the summer. When using grass clippings apply only very thin layers of less than 1 inch around the plants. Before applying, let the clippings age. For best results mix with leaves, wood chips or other brown plant debris.

Synthetic mulches
Synthetic mulches include clear or colored polyethylene plastic films and spun or woven polypropylenes, or "landscape fabrics." Unlike organic mulches, synthetic mulches tend to warm the soil in the summer by as much as 10 degrees because they magnify and trap the heat in the soil.

Colored plastic mulches will suppress weeds and may increase yields of heat-loving crops like peppers, tomatoes and melons. They also retain more moisture than other mulch materials. For many gardeners they are much more convenient to acquire and use.

But if the soil is too wet or dry when the plastic is laid down, it will be more difficult to correct the resulting slower plant growth. In addition, plastic films can suffocate plant root systems of shallow-root plants.

Plastic mulches should be laid down at or before planting time. Plastic can warm a spring soil very quickly, allowing for early season planting if the tops are protected in some other way.

Before applying a plastic mulch, the soil should be fertilized and tilled. The plastic mulch ideally should be removed at the end of each growing season.

A newly developed synthetic material made from polypropylene or polyester is permeable to air and water, but blocks light to suppress most weeds. Landscape fabrics can be used around perennials because they allow more air exchange in and out of the soil. They generally last for many years provided they are covered with some other materials like bark chips or rock.

Inorganic mulches

Inorganic mulches include stones, gravel and other rocks that are used for the same purpose as other mulches. A layer of gravel or pebbles is often applied in areas where the most durable mulch is required. Disadvantages include poor weed control and the inability to add organic matter to the soil once it is in place. It also does not allow for easy soil improvements. But inorganic mulches are relatively inexpensive and should be considered a permanent mulch for woody planting beds.

Mulch Types for Different Crops

Organic mulches tend to keep the soils relatively cool in the spring and these work best for raising cool-season crops. Synthetic mulches tend to warm and retain the warm condition of the soil. In this case, they are best used with warm-season crops.

Asparagus beds need summer care

By Ray Rothenberger

As the asparagus cutting season ends, it is time to evaluate what your bed may need to improve or maintain vigor. From now until fall, asparagus plants must produce and store sugars, and carbohydrates. How much they store will influence the quantity and quality of the shoots produced next spring. Asparagus is native to the eastern Mediterranean area. It has been under cultivation for more than 2,000 years and was highly prized as food by the Greeks and Romans. Written greetings for its culture have been found dating back to 200 B.C. The concerns and methods for growing asparagus in that time are not greatly different from those we use today. Asparagus was brought into American gardens by the first settlers from Europe and has been an important perennial vegetable since colonial times. If an established asparagus planting begins to produce a large number of small, thin spears, one or more cultural problems might be suspected. This condition may be a sign of low fertility or cutting the spears for too long during the previous harvest season. Although asparagus is seldom damaged by winter conditions, an abrupt decline could be the result of severe winter temperatures which may have damaged larger roots. Another influence on spear size is the sex of the plant. Asparagus plants are male and female. Female plants produce red berries while male plants do not. As a general rule, male plants will produce fewer but thicker spears than the female plants. There is no way to determine the sex of seedling plants until they become large enough to flower and the berries are produced. A new asparagus bed may take several years before abundant, thick spears are produced. When production declines, it is time to increase the vigor of the planting. Well planted and established asparagus beds should be productive for 20 to 30 years or more if fertility is maintained and weeds are controlled. Liberal amounts of fertilizer should be applied as soon as each harvest season has ended in June. Well-rotted manure or compost can be applied at a rate of about one bushel per 30 square feet of bed area. A fertilizer such as a 10-10-10 or 13-13-13 may be added at a rate of about 1½ cups per 10 feet of row. Scatter the fertilizer lightly and uniformly without touching the plant stems. Appearance can guide fertility needs. If vigorous growth is occurring, a lighter fertilizer application may be adequate. Since vigorous growth of the tops or "ferns" is important from now until fall, good weed control is often the safest and best. Herbicides containing simazine or trifluralin may be used for control of annual weeds in larger plantings. Salt was once commonly used to kill weeds since asparagus is fairly salt tolerant. Prolonged use of salt leads to deterioration of the physical properties of the soil and a reduction in growth and therefore, is rarely used today. Asparagus beetle is a common insect pest of asparagus. It should also be kept under control for maximum growth and production. Appropriate insecticides should be used whenever it is seen feeding. Use insecticides carefully according to label directions. Other information on growing asparagus is available in guide sheet 6405, "Growing Home Garden Asparagus" which is available from your county's University Extension Center. To order it, call 888-2911. Ray Rothenberger is state horticulture specialist, University of Missouri Extension, Columbia office.

Tips will help reduce summer chore injuries

Don't let summer chores put you in the hospital emergency room this year. That's the message from the Insurance Information Institute which notes that carelessness with lawn mowers sends 55,000 people a year to hospitals. Tips for using lawn mowers:

- Keep children and pets a safe distance away.
- Clear sticks, rocks and toys from the mower's path.
- Make sure the blades have stopped moving before cleaning beneath the mower or picking anything up nearby.
- Don't use an electric mower if it's raining or if the grass is wet.
- Wear sturdy shoes that cover your toes and feet.

Ladder safety tips:

- Make sure it's in good condition and set up in the safest possible way. Have somebody on the ground hold on to the ladder with both hands.
- Replace loose rungs, broken spreaders and frayed ropes on extension ladders.
- Never attempt to climb a wobbly ladder.
- Remember that stepladders can be as risky as extension ladders.
- For yard and garden safety:
 - Don't leave tools and hoses where somebody could trip over them.
 - Keep chemicals out of the reach of children.
 - Use insecticides, fertilizers and pesticides with care. Follow the instructions and pay close attention to winds.

Some ways to make home safer for elderly

By Nick Harder

Knight-Ridder News Service

Maybe it's because my parents are senior citizens.

Maybe it's because I'm getting older.

But it's probably because of my grandmother that I've been thinking of the problems the elderly can have at home.

I remember how she broke her hip in a fall years ago. She fell in her own home, the home she had lived in for 30 years, a home in which she knew every square inch.

Even though I'm under 50, I can tell how my senses sometimes play tricks on me. In the dark, my close-up vision is not as good as it was.

Knowing every square inch of a house doesn't always compensate. But there are a few things you can do to make living at home safer.

—Good lighting is one of them. It might not be enough to have a powerful overhead light in a room. Low-level lighting of walking areas—even near baseboard level—might be needed.

—Night lights for times when a senior gets up to use the bathroom can be a real asset. Try a night light with a sensor that automatically turns on when it's dark.

—Light switches at the top and bottom of stairs also help. A stairway can be a hazard.

—Don't place an area rug near the top of a stairway. A little unsteadiness and that rug could slip, sending someone tumbling down the stairs.

—A stairway or other parts of a home can be problems for people coping with deteriorating depth perception. Don't let an area rug or carpet blend with a surrounding hardwood floor. Strong, bold colors differentiate one area from another. Run a bold strip around the outside of the carpet or rug.

Here are a few other quick suggestions:

—Install decals on glass doors.

—Use non-skid tape on tub and shower floors.

—Install grab bars in bathrooms, particularly in the tub area.

—Tack down those rugs if possible.

Cleaning expert offers vacuuming tips

The dread of summer house cleaning can be eased considerably with just a few easy suggestions.

Don Aslett, author of 15 books on cleaning and a professional cleaner himself, offers these ideas in his new booklet, "Clean the Easy Way," published by Eureka Vacuum Cleaners.

Three overall points Aslett made are:

• "Dejunk! Get rid of stuff you don't need or use.

• For cleaning jobs, do them now. Leaving them is wrong. Ninety percent of house-work can be done now, while you are making the mess and before things get out of control.

• Get help. See that family members clean up after themselves.

"One of the lowest things you can do is to ask—or worse, expect—someone else to clean up your mess," said Aslett.

When it comes to vacuuming, Aslett has this advice to make job easier and faster:

1. Do not do the edge. Where the vacuum cleaner won't reach and the foot never treads, don't worry about it. Once in a while, sweep along the baseboard, your vacuum cleaner doesn't have an edge cleaner, use a broom to flick the visible accumulation of dust out where your vacuum cleaner will reach it.

2. Make sure your vacuum has beater bar action to loosen deep dirt and the right pile adjustment to provide proper air current to take the dirt into the bag.

Aslett advised setting the brush to its highest level and then lowering the nose until it lightly comes in contact with the carpet. If it is too low, you cut off the air flow.

3. The "cow trail" or traffic pattern, where the dirt is, so concentrate on that area. It is not necessary to vacuum under and behind furniture as regularly as you do the "trail."

4. Stairs can be done by using a lightweight upright, a canister or a hand vacuum.

5. Slow down. One leisurely stroke will beat five short swipes any day.

6. Use your free hand to keep the cord out of the vacuum's way. If you vacuum into a room, the cord then always will be behind you.

Grilled bananas in the peel

6 bananas
½ cup honey or maple syrup

Carefully peel away 1-inch strip from side of each banana. Using tip of paring knife, gently loosen edges of peel. Drizzle honey or syrup into space so it flows over surface of banana pulp.

Place bananas peel-side down on rack over glowing coals until peel turns glossy black and fruit is easily pierced with fork.

Serve while still warm with grilled meat or fish.
Makes 6 servings.

Grilled fruit kabobs.

- 5 firm, green-tipped bananas, cut in 1½ inch chunks
- 12 large, firm strawberries
- 1 small cantaloupe, cut in 1 to 1½ inch cubes
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tbsp. fresh lime juice
- 1 tbsp. honey

Thread skewers alternately with bananas, strawberries and cantaloupe, beginning and ending with banana.

Combine melted butter, lime juice and honey. Brush kabobs well with sauce.

Place on grill 2 inches above hot coals.

Cook 5 minutes on each side, brushing with butter sauce. Do not overcook.

Serve immediately.

Makes 6 servings.

Do the day right with festive flavors

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

Skip the tie, the wallet, the socks and the handkerchiefs. No duds for Dad this year.

Invite him to eat in this Father's Day. For lunch, let him check off the Father's Day Sand-Wish List. Dinner will be a summer barbecue deluxe.

If a kitchen helper instead of the usual pro is wielding the tongs at the grill, start the charcoal fire 20 to 30 minutes before placing the meat over the heat. Arrange briquettes in a pyramid in the center of the grill. When the coals are covered with ash and glowing in the center, spread them to cover the entire area beneath the meat. Coals should be placed about one inch apart to obtain an even cooking temperature and help prevent flare-ups. Of course, electric and gas grills heat faster than the charcoal-fired variety, so be prepared to add the food quickly.

Let him savor beef steak marinated for a tender entree and served with an assortment of vegetables for flavor. If the meat needs to be carved, let the meat set a few minutes to firm up.

Always carve across the grain with long, sweeping strokes of a sharp knife for smooth, even slices. Once a slice is made, hold the knife at the same angle.

Add an easily cooked potato—baked in foil on the grill or browned in a frying pan with a sprinkling of olive oil and garlic. Serve slaw for crunchiness. Warm garlic bread over the fire. Put a finale on the outdoors meal by serving Dad's favorite ice cream with bananas grilled in the peel or his favorite fruits combined on a spoke. Grill either fruit specially just before serving so the color, texture and temperature stay bright.

Rich spinach salad stands among winners

Mildred Fox, 7864 General Sheridan Lane, is this week's winner of dinner certificates for the Pasta House Co. for Spinach Salad.

The recipe for this classic salad was obtained from a cafeteria in the Kansas City area. It relies on tangy yellow cheese for its flavor. The creamy dressing is flavored with pepper sauce and vinegar for tang.

Weekly winners during July will be taken from entries in the Summer Chicken Recipe Contest. Let the season dictate how the chicken dish is prepared. It might be barbecued with a sprightly sauce, served in pasta salad, microwaved to keep the kitchen cool or prepared in numerous ways to enhance its capacity for variety.

A single entry to the contest may be sent to: Summer Chicken Recipe Contest, 1215 Fern Ridge Parkway, Suite 100, St. Louis, Mo. 63141. Winning free dinners are a welcome treat any time of year, so think of a favorite chicken recipe that will invite hungry summer appetites.

Winners on the four Wednesdays of July will be chosen on the basis of taste and eye appeal, as well as originality, although the recipe need not be original. Double-check directions and specific amounts, giving variations that individualize the recipe.

Duplicate entries will be considered on the basis of earlier entry or best compliance with rules. Contest winners may enter again six months after their prize-winning publication date.

Spinach salad

- 4 cups chopped raw spinach
- ½ cup finely chopped celery
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup cubed old English cheese (sharp or smoky cheddar may be substituted)
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper sauce
- 1½ tsp. vinegar
- 1½ cups mayonnaise

Combine celery, onion, egg and cheese. Toss lightly with spinach.

Combine salt, pepper sauce, vinegar and mayonnaise. Fold lightly into spinach mixture.

If desired, serve with horseradish on the side.

Taste hint of island flavor with chicken 'n rice dish

With the wave of island cuisines sweeping the nation, Americans are discovering the goodness of green-tipped bananas, a main ingredient cooks in many tropical regions have enjoyed for generations.

When bananas are green-tipped, they are firm, not-too-sweet and excellent for sauteing and serving with chicken. They marry well to spicy seasonings and robust sauces and are also low in calories.

Banana Chicken Barbados combines sweet and savory flavors, such as vanilla yogurt, which is simmered with pan juices, cinnamon, cumin, garlic and cilantro to make a creamy-light sauce.

Banana chicken Barbados

- 1 green-tipped, large banana, peeled
- 1 tsp. ground coriander
- 1 tsp. cumin
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 lb. boned, skinned, chicken breast
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- Salt and pepper, if desired

- 2 tap. flour
- 2 tap. oil
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup vanilla yogurt (without cornstarch)
- 1/2 tap. cornstarch
- 2 tbsp. minced fresh cilantro

Cut banana in half crosswise, then lengthwise in four pieces. Combine coriander, cumin and cinnamon. Rub chicken with garlic. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Sprinkle chicken and bananas with half the spice mixture. Dust chicken with flour.

In nonstick skillet, brown bananas in oil on both sides 2 to 3 minutes. Remove to 2 serving plates. Add chicken to skillet. Brown on both sides. Add water. Simmer, covered, 7 to 8 minutes until chicken is tender. Remove to plates with bananas.

Combine yogurt with remaining spice mixture and cornstarch. Stir into pan juices. Simmer until sauce thickens. Remove from heat. Add cilantro. Serve sauce with chicken and bananas.

Makes 2 servings; 165 calories, 7.2 g. protein, 6.9 g. fat, 20 g. carbohydrate, 41.7 mg. sodium and 17.4 mg. cholesterol each.

ORIENTAL SEASONINGS create the savory flavor in Mandarin Chicken Salad. Indian, Jamaican and Thai cooking styles are on the rise. Combined with a craving for wholesomeness, these far-away flavors taste right at home in America's salad bowl. Main dish salads like these with international flavors are becoming standard fare, particularly during warm summer months.

International salad bowl reflects foreign intrigue

New ingredients and flavors identified with foreign cuisines fascinate Americans. Regional dishes first associated with Mexican and Cajun cooking have entered the American mainstream. Indian, Jamaican and Thai cooking styles are on the rise. Combined with a craving for wholesomeness, these far-away flavors taste right at home in America's salad bowl.

Salads, like so many foods now popular in America, have historical roots on foreign shores. Early Roman salads made from grasses and herbs, were dressed with salt. In fact, both "salt" and "salad" come from "sal," the Latin word for salt. Egyptians favored a salad dressed with oil, vinegar and Oriental spices.

Today, salad is common in America, with its ingredients and flavors varying dramatically. Main dish salads like these with international flavors are becoming standard fare, particularly during warm summer months.

For other salad combinations, write to: "Sensational Salads,"

Association for Dressings and Sauces, P.O. Box 720299, Atlanta, Ga. 30358.

Layer good wishes, flavors to suit Dad's heroic appetite

Tickle Dad's taste buds this father's day by treating him to a hero-sized sandwich. Deliciously satisfying, filling, fun to eat and imaginative, a hearty sandwich is quick and easy enough even for little hands to help make.

Sandwiches can be anything Dad or the cook wants. They can be hot or cold, traditional or trendy, open-faced or closed, regular or inflated club size.

Sandwiches are endlessly easy to mix, match and make. Build Dad's Turkey Dagwood or try Pumpnickel Hero.

These recipes call for turkey sausages, which can be replaced by similar varieties made with other meats, too.

Chicago rocking, rolling after 24 years

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

During the 1960s, the members of Chicago forged a new identity for themselves as masters of the love song ballad. There was no denying the success of the approach—seven ballads from the band's previous three albums became Top 10 hits. But "Chicago Twenty-1," the group's new album, mixes in a taste of the past with the Chicago of the present. Two new songs by founding member Robert Lamm—"One From The Heart" and "Only Time Can Heal The Wounded"—recall the horn-filled pop-rock of such early Chicago hits as "Old Days" and "Saturday In The Park." If fans think these songs are a sign of things to come, they may be right, Lamm said. "I felt, and I still feel, that we have gotten too far from what our initial strength was," Lamm said. "I mean, I think that both of these (new) songs harmonically and rhythmically are very '60s, but they do remind you of the original Chicago that everyone seemed to fall in love with." "As a matter of fact, we were just standing here before I picked up the phone saying that the next album will probably not have any of the ballads, so to speak, that sort of put us back on top in the '60s," Lamm said. Ironically, the move toward ballads during the '60s was something of an accident, he said.

"Well, you know, I'm not a guy who writes ballads, and I certainly appreciate what they've done for the career of Chicago, but I just don't feel that they mean very much to me personally," Lamm said.

"It's just 'If You Leave Me Now' was our first No. 1 single," he said. "Somehow this hard-rocking, hard-blowing outfit called Chicago found a niche that we neither expected nor wanted, you know, being a band that is ballad-heavy."

That the members of Chicago would be talking of change is not altogether surprising. After all, this is a band which has evolved frequently—sometimes out of necessity—in their 24-year history.

Formed in 1967 in the city after which the group was named, Chicago immediately offered a fresh twist by using horns as a centerpiece to a rock sound.

Debuting as Chicago Transit Authority in 1969 (the name was shortened to Chicago a year later on the group's second album), the band enjoyed a string of hits through the mid-1970s that included "25 Or 6 To 4," "Feeling Stronger Every Day," "Saturday In The Park" and "If You Leave Me Now."

The decade ended on an uncertain note when the group was left reeling by the accidental shooting death of original guitarist Terry Kath in 1978.

Two events helped the group rebound: The addition of guitarist Bill Champlin and a collaboration with producer David Foster that began on the "Chicago 16" album in 1982. Foster co-wrote many of the group's hit ballads of the '80s with Peter Cetera. And though the '80s saw more personnel changes, including the departure in 1987 of Cetera, Chicago kept rolling.

The current group includes original members Lamm on keyboards, James Pankow on trombone, Lee Loughnane on trumpet and Walt Parazaider on woodwinds, along with Champlin, Jason Scheff on bass, Dawayne Bailey on guitar and new drummer Tish Imbong.

Lamm, in a statement that may surprise longtime fans, feels the current lineup is the best Chicago yet.

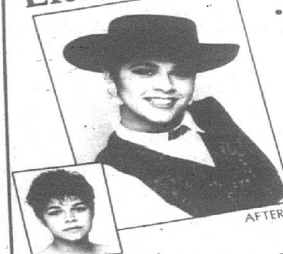

"Partially, I think it's because everybody in the band is a working musician, so I think we've all really refined and honed and learned a lot about being musicians," he said.

Chicago headlines a June 20 show at Riverport Amphitheater. Tickets for the 8 p.m. concert, which also includes opening act The Triplets, are $22.50 and $18.50.

'Newsnight' to debut show July 3 on Channel 9

By Ian MacBryde
Correspondent

At a time when there seems to be less real news content every day in local television news, St. Louis viewers may get lucky.

Beginning July 3, and every Wednesday night thereafter at 7:30 p.m., KETC-TV (Channel 9) will present "Newsnight"—a 30-minute news program which may concentrate on one story, or more likely, on them.

The program will replace "Highway 40," which actually has been off the air since November. As viewers will recall, "Highway 40" was a well-done program that presented one story in depth, largely through studio interviews.

"Newsnight" will be different, according to Managing Producer Jim Kirchherr, who also will anchor the program.

It will normally include three pieces produced on location by staff reporters and by Kirchherr. The pieces may be different aspects of the same story or they may be related stories. The program also will include, he said, other features on a continuing basis.

Kirchherr, incidentally, may be remembered in this market as a producer and later reporter for KTVI-TV (Channel 2) in the days when the station's news department was at or near the top of the local heap.

He has spent the last 3½ years as a news editor in Germany for Radio Free Europe. RFE, by the way, has come under occasional criticism because it has close connections with the U.S. government. But Kirchherr points out that unlike the Voice of America, RFE is not run by a government agency.

It is run by a board appointed by the President, and, "If I hadn't been satisfied that the news was fair and balanced, it would have been difficult," he said.

Kirchherr's job in Germany consisted of presenting news of the world to Eastern Europe, a part of the world which routinely assumed, at least until the recent outbreak of relative freedom, that all media were organs of propaganda. Thus, RFE, according to Kirchherr, used standards of objectivity even more stringent than those used in most Western journalism.

Requirements for attribution and source-checking were in fact, considerably more strenuous than those used in this country, he said. Wire service reports, for example, considered by reporters in the U.S. to be ample substantiation for a story, would not be enough for RFE which requires at least two sources for every report.

The experience might prove to be good background for "Newsnight," which will likely concentrate on some subjects which commercial stations largely neglect.

Since, for the most part, news programs currently ignore anything other than sex and violence, information about the tax structure, or other matters of public importance will be a most useful addition to the public forum.

Kirchherr is quick to insist, however, that his goal is to produce a watchable show.

difference is we can spend a half-hour on a topic—as much time as is needed."

Kirchherr said he remembers that he was the only television reporter in the early- and mid-'80s who regularly covered the meetings of the St. Louis County Council. It is hard to imagine that if he were now on that beat, the council's decision to support the extension of Page Avenue across Creve Coeur Lake would have received so little coverage on television.

Ian MacBryde is an independent video producer and former television executive.

Legions from area converge in Venice

Memorial Day festivities at Venice-Madison American Legion Post 307 began with coffee and donuts being served in the Post Home by the Legion Auxiliary at 10:15 a.m.

Services began at 11 a.m. on the front lawn of Post 307 on Broadway in Venice. Dorothy Hinson, past department of the Legion Auxiliary of Illinois, served as Master of ceremonies. Colors were posted by several visiting veterans' groups and advanced by both the Venice-Madison Post 307 Color Guard and the Illinois POW/MIA Vigil Team. The welcome and opening remarks were given by Hinson. Yobby, Unit 307 chaplain, gave the opening and the closing prayers.

Introduction of guests included recognition of Benny Mangiarino, commander, Post 307; John Belcoff, mayor of Madison; state Rep. Sam Wolf; Dawn Wellman, Miss Poppy from Columbia American Legion Auxiliary Unit 81; Betty Hardison, 22nd District president from Granite City; Betty Wellman, 22nd District first vice president from Columbia; Dorothy Bergrath, 22nd District second vice president from Venice-Madison Post 307; and Audrey "Bobee" Krick, past district president from Wood River Unit 204.

Main speaker of the morning was Fred Krick of Millstadt, 5th Division vice commander of the American Legion. Also offering remarks was Rep. Wolf. Members of Venice-Madison Unit 307 placed wreaths for the World I, World War II, Korean War, Vietnam War, and the Panama, Lebanon and Grenada conflicts, and for Operation Desert Storm. Wreaths were also placed at the Kennedy Memorial, the POW/MIA Cross and the Past Post 307 Commanders' Cross.

Wreaths were placed by the following groups at the replica of the Unknown Soldier and for the POW/MIAs by: Madison Amvet Post 204 and Auxiliary; Granite City Post 51 Amvets; Submarine Veterans of World War II of Illinois-Missouri; Madison VFW Post 7451 and Auxiliary; Illinois POW/MIA Vigil Team; and the Vietnam Veterans of America 422.

Taps was played as the United States flag was raised by Boy Scout Troop 1 of Venice.

A "Salute to the Dead" was fired by the Post 307 Color Guard and the colors were retired.

Recognition was paid to Margie McIntosh of Granite City, formerly of Venice, as a Gold Star Mother in attendance. She was later presented with a gift from Venice-Madison Unit 307 by Gold Star chairman Peggy Hinson.

A barbecue lunch was enjoyed at the Boy Scout Home, hosted by Venice-Madison Post 307. Approximately 200 persons attended.

Memorial Day Services have been held on the front lawn of Venice-Madison Post 307 since 1933. Servicemen killed during wars and conflicts since World War I from Madison and Venice have a cross in the section by the flag pole. The deceased members of Post 307 crosses are on the lawn before the replica of the Unknown Soldier.

Angie Brown, 15, of Granite City was crowned "Sweethearts 1991 Queen" in her age division at the Sweethearts Pageant held recently in Belleville.

She also placed first in talent with her dance routine as well as first in photogenic and the best model award.

Angie is the reigning "Miss Pre-Teen Lily of the Valley Queen." She placed first alternate in photogenic and talent too.

At the Illinois-Iowa State Universal Charm Pageant held in Elgin on April 28, Angie was first alternate to the queen and took top honors in modeling, best dressed and most beautiful.

During the Miss Madison County pageant, held May 19 in Alton, she placed first in photogenic and second alternate. Angie attends Granite City High School where she will start her sophomore year this fall. One of her favorite classes the past year was acting class. At the end of the school year, the class members performed at several elementary schools in the area and also choreographed most of the program.

She is active with Glitter Girls Dance Team and takes modeling classes at the Glitter Girls Studio in Granite City. The studio is

Essays reflect pride in flag

With Flag Day just around the corner it seems appropriate to reprint the essays that were winners of the recent Legion-sponsored Americanism Essay Contest. Both children attend the Madison Middle School and were in the sixth grade.

First-place Winner:
Laura Peterson
How I Respect the American Flag
I respect the American Flag because it's a part of my country. The 50 stars represent the 50 states and the 13 stripes represent the 13 original colonies. I think every body should respect the Flag because it shows peace, loyalty and bravery. It's a symbol of freedom and justice to the people fighting in the Middle East. The people of Iraq really truly have no freedom. They are ruled by Saddam Hussein. Their pride has been stripped. We have a day that we call

L. Peterson

Flag Day this is celebrated on June 14th. That is the day that we Americans show our true patriotism by displaying our flag proudly. It is truly great to be an American.

Our school has an American Flag outside and everyday students go out to raise the Flag. We say the Pledge of Allegiance every day for our Country. I love and respect the American Flag and so does our school. I think our school colors should be red, white and blue.

Second-place Winner:
Michael Dollar
How I Respect the American Flag

I respect the American Flag as if it were gold. It is precious and shows our heritage. It is the symbol of freedom, liberty and life in America.

If it was not for the American Flag and it's history, we would still be under British control and would not be free. It symbolizes freedom and the right to our own government. Francis Scott Key was observing the American Flag as it was flying over Fort Mchenry, and felt so strongly, he wrote a poem, and it became our National Anthem.

The American Flag was respected, as today's American Flag is respected. It was carried into battle by the troops. On Veteran and Memorial Day, it is lowered to half mast for the men and women who died, and carried in parades for the victories. When the American Flag goes by in parades, men and women stand and salute.

One more reason why I respect the American Flag is that it stands for freedom of speech, liberty, press, religion and the right to bear arms. I have the right to decide and choose things for my life.

When I look at the Flag, I see the faces of the men and women who fought for us, the freedom they earned for us, and the hardships of the wars that they endured for freedom. It makes me stand proudly and glow inside. The American Flag truly represents the American people.
